Amundi introduces active Euro corporate bond ETF to broaden access to recognised Euro credit expertise

Paris, March 17th, 2026 - Amundi, the European leading ETF provider¹ and a European leader in fixed income, today announces the launch of the Amundi EUR Corporate Bond Active UCITS ETF, an active Euro investment-grade corporate bond ETF designed to deliver alpha generation for investors seeking exposure to European credit within a simple and transparent UCITS ETF wrapper. Listed on Xetra, the ETF is available to a broad audience of professional and private investors across Europe².

This solution offers a new way for investors to access Amundi's extensive fixed income expertise. It leverages Amundi's scale and experience in active fixed income - €830 billion in fixed income assets under management including €360 billion in Euro credit supported by around 200 investment professionals³ - and the strength of Amundi's ETF platform, which comprises more than 350 ETFs representing over €340 billion of assets under management⁴.

The ETF is based on a long-standing Euro Corporate Bond strategy, managed by an experienced team led by Hervé Boiral, CIO Euro Credit & Investment Solutions. The strategy has existed since 1999 - year when the euro was introduced - and benefits from significant assets under management and track record.

The solution offers access to the European investment-grade credit market while providing the liquidity, transparency and easy accessibility of the ETF format. The ETF will invest in around 100 issuers, with at least 80% of its net assets in corporate bonds issued by issuers in OECD countries, and at least 70% of its assets invested in Euro-denominated investment-grade corporate bonds. It is classified as Article 8 under the Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation⁵.

Gilles Dauphiné, Head of Active and White Label ETFs at Amundi, commented: "With this launch, we are bringing Amundi's active expertise in Euro credit into an ETF wrapper, making a successful, long-standing strategy even more visible and widely available. It demonstrates our ambition to broaden access to our strategies by offering clients solutions that combine our investment know-how with the transparency and accessibility of ETF."

This new ETF complements Amundi's active ETF range, which was recently enriched with an active money market ETF, and will continue to expand in the coming months, drawing on Amundi's leadership in active and passive management.

KNOWING YOUR RISK

It is important for potential investors to evaluate the risks described below and in the fund's Key Information Document ("KID") and prospectus available on our websites www.amundiETF.com.

CAPITAL AT RISK - ETFs are tracking instruments. Their risk profile is similar to a direct investment in the underlying index securities. Investors' capital is fully at risk and investors may not get back the amount originally invested.

UNDERLYING RISK - The underlying index securities of an ETF may be complex and volatile. For example, ETFs exposed to Emerging Markets carry a greater risk of potential loss than investment in Developed Markets as they are exposed to a wide range of unpredictable Emerging Market risks.

REPLICATION RISK - The fund's objectives might not be reached due to unexpected events on the underlying markets which will impact the index calculation and the efficient fund replication.

COUNTERPARTY RISK - Investors are exposed to risks resulting from the use of an OTC swap (over-the-counter) or securities lending with the respective counterparty(-ies). Counterparty(-ies) are credit institution(s) whose name(s) can be found on the fund's website amundiETF.com. In line with the UCITS guidelines, the exposure to the counterparty cannot exceed 10% of the total assets of the fund.

CURRENCY RISK - An ETF may be exposed to currency risk if the ETF is denominated in a currency different to that of the underlying index securities it is tracking. This means that exchange rate fluctuations could have a negative or positive effect on returns.

LIQUIDITY RISK - There is a risk associated with the markets to which the ETF is exposed. The price and the value of investments are linked to the liquidity risk of the underlying index securities. Investments can go up or down. In addition, on the secondary market liquidity is provided by registered market makers on the respective stock exchange where the ETF is listed. On exchange, liquidity may be limited as a result of a suspension in the underlying market represented by the underlying index tracked by the ETF; a failure in the systems of one of the relevant stock exchanges, or other market-maker systems; or an abnormal trading situation or event.

VOLATILITY RISK - The ETF is exposed to changes in the volatility patterns of the underlying index relevant markets. The ETF value can change rapidly and unpredictably, and potentially move in a large magnitude, up or down.

CONCENTRATION RISK - ETFs can select a large portion of their assets in a particular issuer, industry, stocks or type of bonds, country or region for their portfolio. Where selection rules are extensive, it can lead to a more concentrated portfolio where risk is spread over fewer stocks. Where selection rules are extensive, it can lead to a more concentrated portfolio where risk is spread over fewer stocks. This can mean both higher volatility and a greater risk of loss.
